

Background

As a leading French pharmaceutical group, Ipsen engaged Peldon Rose to create a new headquarters building in Slough. This was done by consolidating three different offices and creating a campus site in Slough together with a PLC base in a grade One listed building in Kensington Square.

How we delivered

By creating a highly cellular environment we were able to execute the brief by creating individual quiet workspaces that fully fulfilled the needs of all.

A synergy of communication was fostered by the creation of a restaurant and café, which formed the 'glue' to the workspace.

The workspace has a feeling of individuality within both personal space and team space with a twist of dynamism by the linking of each floor with a dynamic feature staircase.
